

Romanticism and autism in the 21st century

REVUE MÉDECINE ET PHILOSOPHIE

Aloïs Joly*

*University Lyon 1

---

ABSTRACT

Romantic diseases of the nineteenth century have characteristics broadly similar to those we find in the twenty-first century: the autism spectrum disorder supports such a conception, anchored in the values of society, while at the same time recalling how many this mark of time leaves a footprint difficult to apprehend for those who live it.

KEYWORDS romanticism; representation ; social construct.